

Nelson Croom sponsor IRRV award

Nelson Croom is proud to sponsor the 'Social Inclusion Award' at the IRRV conference in Brighton this year.

Nelson Croom has worked with the Institute of Revenues, Rating and Valuation for 3 years, to develop Euclidian – a suite of products for Local Authorities to train staff on Benefits, Council Tax and Business Rates. Euclidian is now used in 93% of Local Authorities.

The awarding panel is looking for an organisation who has demonstrated leading edge approaches to the delivery of social inclusion policies, which have improved the life of those experiencing poverty or deprivation.

"We are delighted to support the IRRV in this way" says Alan Nelson, Managing Director of Nelson Croom. "We are always aware that our work with the IRRV is directly helping those who work in the frontline in Local Authorities and I hope that this means that, in turn, we are helping some of the people in society who need it most."

"The IRRV's Annual Performance Awards are one of the longest running local government and public services awards events and we rely on support of our sponsors to run events such as this" states David Magor, Director, IRRV. "We are delighted that Nelson Croom has become so involved. The partnership between Nelson Croom and the IRRV has truly put the IRRV at the forefront of professional development in the Revenues and Benefits sector."
