Nelson Croom joins Acevo

Nelson Croom is delighted to announce that it has become a commercial member of Acevo, the Association of Chief Executives of Voluntary Organisations.

Nelson Croom has been working and partnering with organisations in the third sector since the company began in 2000. This new membership of Acevo demonstrates Nelson Croom's continued dedication to the sector. Acevo is the professional body for the third sector's leaders, with a mission to increase the sector's impact and efficiency. It connects, develops and represents over 2000 members. Acevo is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, having provided support and advice to members since 1987.

"Demonstrating our support and commitment to this community is very important to us. We have worked with organisations from all areas of the sector, including Addaction and CAADA, as well as a number of professional associations, to help them get the most out of online learning. Our new membership of Acevo will help us to understand and communicate with these organisations better and we are looking forward to developing our relationship with Acevo and their members." Jacqui Nelson, Business Development Manager, Nelson Croom.
